Re: Microsoft Settlement,

In my position as CTO of a large Internet based company I have the opportunity to observe the long-term effects of Microsoft's outrageous behavior. I have seen how Microsoft's undermining of JAVA and other standards has pushed the industry backwards by at least 10 years, and cost every company that I know thousands of unnecessary dollars in multiple development efforts and exception level programming. With the latest US court ruling we now have given Microsoft access to infiltrate our government with millions of dollars of crippling technology. Microsoft should feel the maximum punishment of the law for their monopolistic practices. Please reexamine the recent rulings on this case and create justice for the small technology companies that legally support our government.

CTO
